

Sy and Manny the salamanders meet

Sy and Manny the salamanders were enjoying the outdoors on a _____ spring day.
adjective

Since they are amphibians, they love _____ areas and were soaking up the warmth of the habitat
sun as well as the moisture from the wetland through their permeable skin.

Sy strolled up to Manny and said, " _____."
greeting

"Hi," said Manny.

"Are you a _____ too?" Sy asked?
animal

"You bet I am!" Manny answered. "Can't you tell since I look the same as you?"

However, Sy couldn't tell. That's because tiger salamanders can look so different. Some have _____ bodies and _____ spots. Some have green _____ and yellow stripes. Their color color plural body part coloring can be quite different.

Sy and Manny continued to _____, and they became the best of friends.
verb

Together, they set out to find _____. They looked for _____, _____ and meal plural animal plural animal other wiggly creatures in the soil.

When they were full, they decided to burrow into the _____ dirt and go to sleep, color
where they were safe from predators like _____ and _____. In the _____ dirt, no one plural animal plural animal adjective could see them.

The _____ moon rose, the stars _____, and Sy and Manny slept soundly.
adjective past tense verb

_____, tiger salamander friends!
phrase